

- 1 (A). the scientific study of human cultures by analyzing the physical clues that people have left behind. pg.25
- 1 (B). a scientific method determining the age of something that was once alive. pg.26
- 1 (C). semi-frozen shallow soil where plants grow low to the ground pg.29
- 1 (D). a swampy bog too wet to grow many types of plants pg.29
- 1 (E). a transport device made of two joined poles and drawn by animal pg
- 1 (F). a pile of stones used as a marker
- 1 (G). structures made of stones arrayed in a circle
- 1 (H). sewing tools used to punch holes
- 1 (I). a corral-like enclosure used to trap bison pg.40
- 1 (J). objects produced or shaped by human activity

2 They uncover fossils, and erosion features on the fossils

3 archaeological evidence says that people lived here before the bridge was there

4 the ice age ended so we had to adapt because the weather got warmer

5 they thrived because of all of the grassland which provided a lot of food

6 a north old trail is a trail the people in North America took

7 a pictograph is a painting and a petroglyph is a carving in stone

8 the Native Americans guided all the buffalo off the cliff which led them to their death

1 Oral history does not study the fossil and go find them as much as archaeologists do
It's also important to learn everything you can learn so you know a vast amount of things.

2 One of the most things were when they stuck together. Bonding through a hard time can help a lot. One of the things that happened quickly was how the ice age ended and the weather got warmer. The introduction of the arrow was also huge and the growth of new plants.

3 The reasons we still see remains is from the erosion process which may be slow at times.

1 I would find tools and arrowheads. But 400 years in the future pots, pans, and silverware will be big for archaeologists

2 In a day in my life I can go to the store and buy meat but the people 8,000 years ago couldn't do that, they had to go kill their supper. I could also imagine that the days were longer for them as well. Helping their parents find food and fresh water, and skinning animals.

3 When the weather got super cold they had to prepare for months in advance. But for our cold months we have a heater in our home for the weather. And winter time is good for skiing for us. And they didn't have that high tech skiing stuff.

1 In Three Forks we have a museum that shows the old Native American stuff and there is a lot of posters that show the place was explored by Native Americans and Lewis and Clark. We also have pictographs, arrowheads and the buffalo jump.